A Jesuit Business School

FULL TIME PGDM

ADMISSION FLYER 2022-24

Who we are

Loyola Institute of Business Administration (LIBA) is a premier B-school, established in 1979 within the premises of Loyola College Campus. It is managed by Jesuits well known for their outstanding contribution to education. LIBA stands for excellence with ethics, the twin hallmarks of Jesuit business education; all its programs and activities embody these two elements. It earnestly strives to inculcate the values of excellence, honesty, justice and service to society in its students.

LIBA offers two-year Full-Time PGDM course, (approved by AICTE and recognized by AIU), Part-Time PGDM (approved by AICTE) and several short-term diploma and certificate programmes and many customized management development programmes for the industry.

What we do

The new curriculum is based on the principle of what we intend students to become after two years of learning, both in academic and co-academic realms. Becoming is the focus, not merely knowing ideas and concepts. To become a person, one needs to know what she/he is at present – being. Understanding of the state of being at present and desire to become something else are the two elements of learning and formation at LIBA.

First, a student is asked to identify the gap in the learning process. There is a gap between what one is and what she/he desires to become. This gap is identified by discernment in which the student becomes aware of inner motivations, movements and intentions and recognize efficiencies and deficiencies. For this, the student will be exposed to different activities and experiences to discern his/her future, what she/he wants to become and how that becoming would contribute to his/her own life and to the wellbeing of the society. Second, once she/he comes to a grip of what she/he is and what she/he intends to become, learning is structured and planned in terms of choosing an approach to learning, evolving the foundations of learning and designing a framework for Teaching-Learning-Assessment (TLA). The foundational Philosophy is to understand and learn about the 'hungers' and 'desires' of the learners and develop a curriculum for an integrated development of the person as a whole. The core of the entire management education lies in gaining a great clarity about what and how an institute like LIBA intends to help and guide the students to become different and make a difference in the lives of people in the society. All starts from what the consumers want and need that directs the kind of products and services to be produced and developed. These products and services have to be marketed and sold to satisfy the consumers (Marketing). Students have to understand the markets and develop selling skills to bring value and returns to the consumers (Finance). Supply chain and operations to reach the products and services should be understood by the students (Operations) and they should be accompanied in their learning of the role logistics and supply chain plays in the entire process. More than ever now, technology and analytics enhances the competitiveness of the business enterprises. Today technology, particularly Artificial Intelligence (AI), Machine Learning (ML), Blockchain (BC), and other related areas must be introduced to the students.

In LIBA, students do not write conventional exams. There are no mid-term or end term exams. We assess the learning by using the strengths of the students: "Singers must be tested on singing, and dancers must be tested on dancing." Instead, there is a Formative Assessment in which every session ends with an assessment of learning. At the end of term, there is Summative Assessment in which each student is asked to satisfy examiners with their knowledge of basic concepts and application of the concepts in real time situations. If a student's core competence and skill is oral communication, he or she is tested predominantly on oral tests. Similarly, every student chooses his/her way by which learning is demonstrated and assessed by examiners. Case study method forms the core of the ecosystem of learning and assessment in LIBA. There are field courses in which the students are able to apply their knowledge.
